SAUL'S LAST BATTLE.

Discovered. He Asked Aid of the Witch of Endor—Described by Evil Spirits. The Battle Lost—Saul and Jonathan Slain—The Song of the Bow, or Saul's Dead March—David King of Judah, Lord, King of All Israel.

"Check in my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in Him, and I am helped."—Psalm 124.

REBUCKED and hunted by King Saul, no place was safe for David. He fled to the Philistines, desiring him for a friend rather than a foe, gave him and his followers the city of Gath. While residing there, David's conquests were over the Amalekites.

Meantime, the end of Saul's reign was nearing. A fresh Philistine invasion required all the army he could muster, and he felt very dubious respecting the results. Although in harmony with the Divine revelation, he had ordered all who claimed to communicate with the dead to be hanged, nevertheless some remained. In his extremity, King Saul visited the Witch of Endor.

The witch got into communication with the evil angels, who she supposed, as the Philistines still supposed, were the spirits of the dead. But the Bible assures us that "the dead know nothing." Saul was awaiting the revelation, morning.

Then as now, evil spirits through mediums communicated with the dead and answered as instead of the dead. In this case, the answer was that on the next day the king and his sons would be defeated and slain.

The Bible clearly teaches that the dead are dead and can give no information whatever; that they are simply in a state of suspended animation, awaiting the better day when Messiah will bring the knowledge of God's glory to all as the result of His ransom sacrifice at Calvary. The teaching that the dead are alive, and that God's Word, and the foundation of the graves which have been discredited. None would pray for the dead or say masses for their release from Purgatory, if they knew that their dead were merely sleeping until the resurrection.

"The Song of the Bow." When David heard of the defeat, his sympathy for Saul and Jonathan was expressed in a beautiful poem (2 Sam. 1:1-27). The Dead March from Saul is an attempt to put into modern music David's Song of the Bow.

In the battle Saul's sons were killed, including Jonathan. Saul himself was wounded. Fearing lest the Philistines would torture him to death, he faintly begged a young Amalekite to bring him to David, telling that he had slain King Saul at the latter's request—probably, however, manufacturing this tale to bring honor to himself. But David commanded him to be put to death.

Realizing that the time had come to move from the Philistine country, David inquired of the Lord by the Urim and the Gibeon. The answer was that he should go to Helzon. In Judah, David and his companions remained with their families; and the tribe of Judah, his own tribe, promptly recognized him as their king. King Saul's son Ishbosheth had survived; and Abner, Saul's chief general, had his son's hand on the sword.

Finally Abner, angered with King Ishbosheth, proposed to become David's vassal. King David, however, considering it the Lord's will, however, the matter did not come out for David. David's nephew, Abner, died deceitfully. Instead of rejoicing in Abner's death, the king mourned for him and denounced his nephew's wrong course.

King of All Israel. Shortly after this, others misunderstanding King David, slew King Ishbosheth and brought his head to David, expecting to be rewarded. They were condemned, and slain. All these things endeared the king to the people, who perceived that he was broad-minded and generous. He seems to have had a great appreciation of justice, and also a breadth of sympathy for his enemies.

Finally the other David's enemies, who were tribes, tried to bring him over all Israel. This was possible, seventeen years after his anointing by Samuel. Faith and patience made a very step of those years, and revealed David's character as we see it otherwise have known it. It is, indeed, was chiefly manifested in his devotion to God and his submission to God's will.

Meantime King David had grown strong by conquering his enemies. He had declared that the integrity of the Amorites had come to the full, and that they should be destroyed. Whether destroyed in battle, by pestilence, famine or war, the Divine sentence must be carried out.

Those who died by sword or sword with sword in the midst of them. They will be freed from ignorance and superstition, with Messiah's Kingdom ready to bring them back to human perfection, not in Eden, redeemed at Calvary.

Melon For Ford Owners

Announcement that another Ford melon of more than $15,000,000 would be allied was made at the New York office of the Ford Motor Company. This time the Ford purchasers are to be beneficiaries of the distribution of profit.

Mr. Ford said last year that the company would share its profits with its customers if its sales aggregated 300,000 cars between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915. Each customer was to receive $50.

It was said at the Ford office that the company had the 300,000 cars would be sold by August 1 next. Mr. Ford's words were quoted as follows:

"Hearing the unforseen, the distribution of $50 per customer since August 1 last, will take place a year from that date."

From present indications it was said the number of cars sold by August next will be 325,000. This will make the customers $10,250,000.

Is This Locust Year? We are not certain that this is or is not locust year, but certainly it is locust blossom year and whether or not the pest locust will bother us or not, a drive through this section of Central Kentucky will reveal the fact that there are many more locust trees than even the close observers would think. They are all white with bloom and add beauty to this favored section of God's foot stool.

The foliage of all trees is unusually heavy but they do not hide the pretty bloom of the locust which is distinguishable in every clump of trees. By the way, this beautiful country never looked prettier than now and with good grass, bumper crops coming and many things combining to make better times ahead there is every reason that we should be glad that we live in Kentucky, where war, pestilence and famine are unknown and where every prospect gleams and even man is not so vile.

The Cologne Gazette says that Germany will not violate the neutrality of Switzerland; that the case of Switzerland is different from that of Belgium. The only important difference of Switzerland has so good an army that it could cost more than it would be worth to cross Swiss territory.—Buffalo Express.

With the certainty of one large factory being built at Newfield, and a probability of six others to follow soon, that part of York county seemed about to enter an era of unbounded prosperity.—Maine Farmer.

And similar indications of prosperity are cropping out throughout the State. Maine is going to keep up with the prosperity procession.—Portland Eastern Argus.

Backed by the city council, Lebanon commercial club, the fiscal court and a number of prominent citizens, a petition will be filed next week with the State Railroad Commissioners urging that a new depot be built in Lebanon. It has been rumored for several years that the L. & N. already have the plans for a new depot drawn and will realize the request. The people back of the movement are confident that Lebanon will have a new depot within the next few months.—Lebanon Falcon.

May Seek State Office R. D. Thornbury, a well-known Democrat of Lebanon, is being strongly mentioned as a probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture. It is urged in his interest that the Fourth Congressional district has only one candidate for a state office, and that a minor one. Mr. Thornbury has been a practical farmer and is thoroughly conversant with all the requirements of the office to which he may aspire, and he has the matter under consideration and may share his candidacy in the ring.—Louisville Times.

Rapier-Spalding

The wedding of Miss Martha T. Rapier, of Bardonia, and Mr. J. LaMotte Spalding, of this city, were quietly solemnized at St. Joseph's church in Bardonia Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock. Rev. J. C. O'Connell, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

The only attendants were Mr. Victor Kelly of Bardonia, and Mr. Carl Spalding of this city, a brother of the groom. Immediately following the ceremony the young people left for a bridal trip to points in the east and will be gone for ten days or two weeks.

Miss Rapier is the daughter of Judge P. H. Rapier and is one of Bardonia's best known and most attractive young ladies. She has frequently visited here where she has numerous friends and is much admired.

Mr. Spalding is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Spalding and is a well known young business man. He has for several years been a bookkeeper at the Farmers National Bank and is also serving his second term as City Clerk of Lebanon.

He enjoys a wide acquaintance and is very popular with everyone. Upon their return from their bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Spalding will make their home with Mr. Spalding's parents on East Main street—Lebanon Enterprise.

I Remember

I remember, I remember the house where I was born, the little window where the sun came peeping in at morn. You'd hardly know the old place now. Dad is up-to-date and the farm is a different one from the back lot to the gate. The house and the barn are lighted with bright electricity, the engine is the latest in its run by gasoline; we have autos, we have autos, we have dynamos and things, a telephone for gossip and a phonograph that sings. The hired man has left us—we miss his homely face—a lot of college graduates are working in his place. There's an engineer and fireman, a plumber and a vet., a tinsmith and a mechanic. Oh, the farm's run right, you bet. The little window where the sun came peeping in at morn is now brightened up with a bath room that cost a lot of corn. Our milkmaid is a mechanic and a dairyman, a lot of college graduates are working in his place. There's an engineer and fireman, a plumber and a vet., a tinsmith and a mechanic. Oh, the farm's run right, you bet. The little window where the sun came peeping in at morn is now brightened up with a bath room that cost a lot of corn. Circuit Court

The Washington Circuit Court in session this week. There is a light docket and the jury except those serving in the Jack Rose have been dismissed until Tuesday June 26, when a civil case involving a midwesterner will be tried.

Several small cases were disposed of Tuesday and several yesterday. The case of the Commonwealth vs Jack Rose charged with the murder of John J. McGee, a Chicago man whom he killed at 1015 N. Hookerston, a colored settlement of Springfield, by throwing a rock at him. The testimony was concluded yesterday at 5 p. m. and the case argued by the Commonwealth and C. M. Duncan and John A. Pollin for the defense. The testimony showed that both Rose and the dead man were claimants for the affections of a colored woman named Fonzie Maddi. Rose had a difficulty in which she was fighting Maddi. Rose struck and killed him with a rock, Rose claimed that he threw the rock at Fonzie Maddi brother's head, and that Fonzie was the one who killed Rose. Fonzie admitted advancing in him with the axe but claimed that he rushed at him with the axe but after he had thrown the axe he turned back and showed the rock at his brother.

The jury deliberated a short time and returned a verdict of guilty a verdict finding defendant guilty and fixing his punishment at not less than three nor more than six years.

The following gentlemen composed the Grand Jury: Mr. Frank Foreman, H. E. Case, W. I. Hayes, Jas. L. Mora, Gilbert Hatchett, Howard Russell, W. D. Bottom, Walter Hale, S. S. D. West, T. E. Ballard, J. M. McQuinn, J. A. McQuinn, J. E. McQuinn.
